"Man Behind Scenes" Exposed As Lead Actor

Bill Peitz Plays
Lead Role, Helps
Construct Scenes

At long last the man behind the scenes is coming into the spotlight.

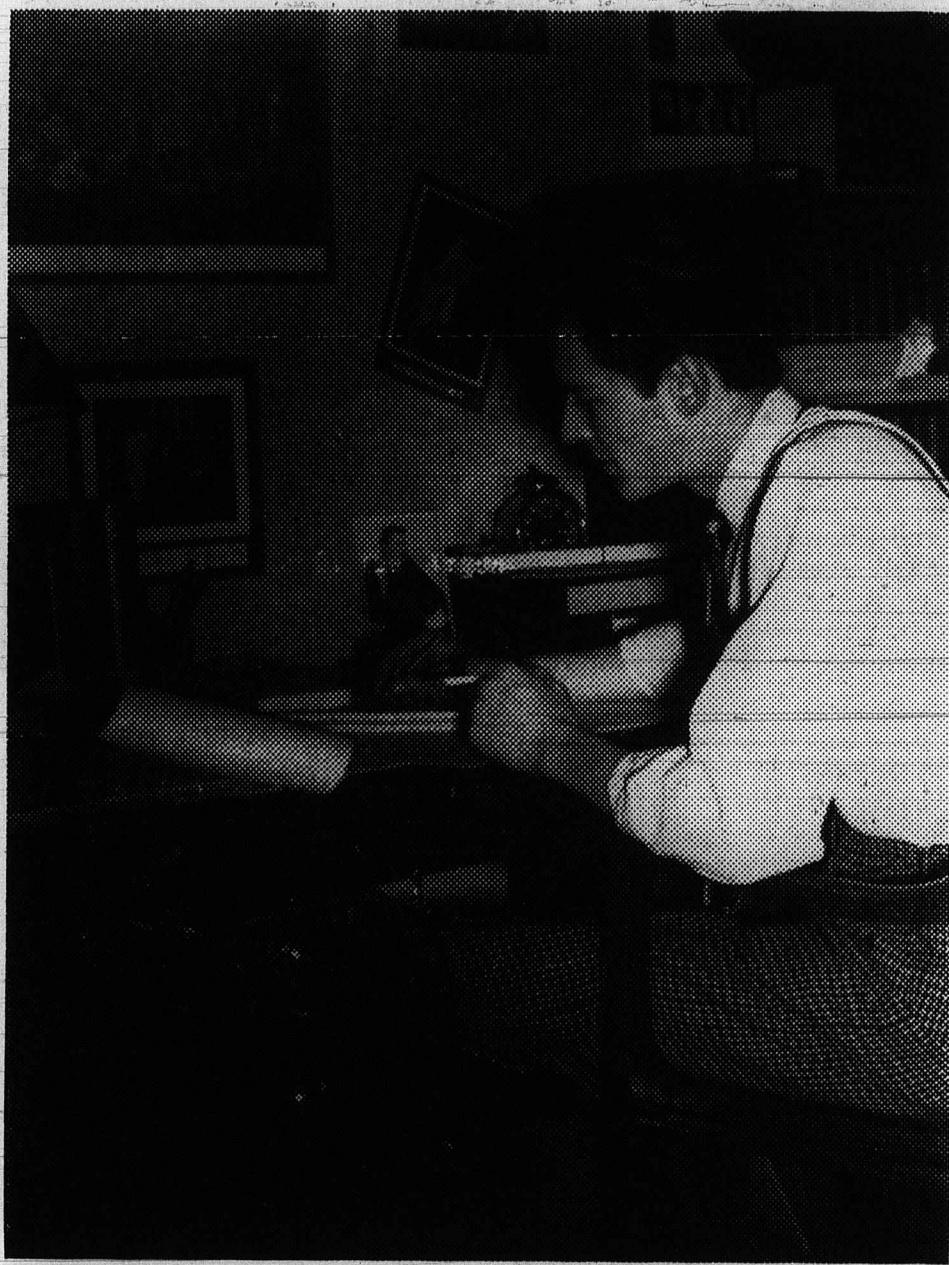

For three years one of St. Joe's sons has been devoting the majority of his time and energy towards the backstage work that makes every Collegeville drama what it is. Besides taking care of the regular worries and headaches that confront a stage manager, he designs the scenery, and does some of the directing. He has even written a play.

Now for the first time he steps into the spotlight he so rightly deserves as Prince Sirki, in the Columbian Literary Society's current production of Alberto Casella's, "Death Takes a Holiday." His name, Bill Peitz.

This will be the first time that Bill, a junior from Ft. Wayne, has ever played a major role in all the plays he has been connected with.

Bill, who hopes to go into theatrical work as a director after graduation, speaks of the coming play with great enthusiasm. "This play," he says, "offers an opportunity for some really good acting. Everything is running smoothly so far, and the play should be a great success."

Besides being a member of the Columbian Literary Society, Bill has his name on the roster of the Raleigh Club, the Poetry Society, and the staff of Measure.

Catholic Publications, Paintings, On Display

Starting Saturday afternoon, Feb. 15, and continuing through until Monday evening, Feb. 17, the Sanguinist Club for Catholic Action will hold its Catholic Press Exhibit. Both reception parlors in the Administration Building will be given over to the exhibit, it was announced by the Rev. Thomas Grotenrath, C. PP. S., club moderator.

Dominic Kastre, senior from Dennison, Ohio, newly elected president of the club, will act as chairman for the exhibit.

Catholic papers, from high schools, colleges, universities, and diocesan editions, will be shown in the newspaper section of the exhibit. Tables in the rooms will contain Catholic College magazines, and a special display will be made of pamphlets on current topics.

The Dwenger Mission Unit will have a feature display, as will the Camera Club. This latter group will show a series of Chambers' pictures. Others sections will be given over to modern Catholic biography, works by members of the Congregation of the Precious Blood, and jackets from books to call attention to modern works in the field of Catholic Literature.

Members of the Sanguinist Club will be present during the exhibit to act as guides. Anyone interested in ordering a book or pamphlet displayed during the exhibit may do so through the DMU store.

Hours for the exhibit will start at one o'clock Saturday afternoon, Feb. 15. Evening closing hour will be eight o'clock. Final day for the exhibit will be Monday.

Chambers' Portraits Part of Press Show

"LIGHT OF THE WORLD"

C. Ed Gross & Co.
C. Bosseron Chambers is probably the best known modern Religious painter. For there is in his pictures, over and above their universality, a kind of human appeal which has caused him to be known as "An Old Master in a New World."

Illustrated here is a copy of the far-famed oil painting, "Light of the World." This portrait, together with many other works by Chambers, will be exhibited by the Camera Club during the Sanguinist Club's second annual Catholic Press exhibit from Feb. 15 to Feb. 17.

"Light of the World" was posed by Benito Celenti, an Italian baby. The portrait is taken from a larger altar piece, "St. Joseph and the Infant," which hangs in St. Ignatius Church, in Chicago.

Kitchen, Fieldhouse Progressing Rapidly

Work on the fieldhouse has been making slow but steady progress toward completion during the last few weeks.

The Reverend Edmund Guillozet, C. PP. S., is of the opinion that the basketball floor will be laid and ready for use inside of three weeks. This would be too late for the last home game against Central Normal.

On the other hand, the improve-

CYO Offers Cooperation For Raleigh Club's Hop

Plans are now completed for the Second Annual Raleigh Club dance, to be held in the Rensselaer Armory, Saturday night, February 15, from 8:30 till midnight.

An all-student band, composed of ten members, will provide the musical accompaniment for this hop. The band, working together since the beginning of the first semester, now boasts a repertoire of over fifty numbers. These fifty range from slow sweet rhythms to the "boogie-woogie" style.

Bill Kozielski, chairman, and Dick Scheiber, committeeman, spent two days visiting CYO units in the following towns: Fowler, Kentland, Earl Park, Goodland, Rensselaer, Pulaski, and Remington. Arrangements were made with CYO girls from these towns to be present. This arrangement should help to eliminate the "stag" line.

The committee on decoration has announced that the Armory will be done in red and white. Tickets may be secured for seventy-five cents at Room 219, Drexel Hall, or in the club rooms. Only members of the club are eligible to attend.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Fischer, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Dienhart, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Scharf, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Conley will act as chaperons. Town permission, according to the Dean of Students, will be 1:30.

For the past few weeks, the photo shop has been a beehive of activity. Taking pictures, developing, printing, and enlarging, is all in a day's work for Father John W. Baechle and his assistants, Walter Donahue and George Lundy.

Camera in hand, and a keen eye for a good shot, George Lundy has often surprised some professor by flashing the bulb at him. Then with a look full of apology, and a murmured "Thank you, Father," he would rush the informal shot to the photo shop for developing. Formal shots of chairmen of each department of studies and clubs have been taken by Father Baechle.

In the photo shop Walter Donahue places the negatives through all the processes of development.

Charles Peitz also has a hand in these activities. During the past month, he made eighteen drawings, which have cartoon effects with rhythmic half-tones. Primarily, they depict various phases of school history and activities on the campus.

"The ultimate cause of all these activities," said Father Baechle, sitting in a large easy chair with a breviary in his hand, "is Phase. No one who gets a copy will put it on the shelf, since all phases of activities and college life will be portrayed in it."

"We still have to take photos of the band," he continued with an apologetic smile, "a couple of clubs, and the board of trustees. Soon we shall take an airshot of the campus."

It is hoped that all will be taken and developed before April first, since the year book, Phase, will come out on May 15.

Sanguinist Club Elects D. Kastre

Last Wednesday evening the Sanguinist Club for Catholic Action held its regular meeting to elect officers.

Here are the officials for the coming year: Dominic Kastre, president, from Dennison, Ohio; Paul Le Sage, vice president, from Fowler, Indiana; Louis Dell, secretary, from Tiffin, Ohio; Robert Contant, treasurer, from Fort Wayne; Earl Weis, corresponding secretary, from Toledo, Ohio.

J. Risch Heads Philatelic Fans

At their weekly meeting, Saturday, Feb. 1, the Farley Stamp Club, local collectors' group, selected John Risch, freshman winner of many philatelic trophies, to succeed Robert Contant as President. Also elected were Richard J. Arthur, vice-president, Robert Contant, secretary and Max Schmid, treasurer.

President Risch, whose home is in Evansville, currently has his famous collection of Guatemala stamps on display in an exhibition at Columbia University.

At the same meeting, the club voted to become a local unit of the Society of Philatelic Americans, national stamp collectors' organization. This affiliation will enable the Club to obtain famous collections for exhibition purposes, movies concerning philately, and many other advantages. The Farley Stamp Club is already a member of the National Federation of Stamp Clubs.

The

DRIFT

(Editorial)

Offhand, we doubt if anyone could discover a more universal interest—at least as far as college students are concerned—than the interest that lies in arguing. Practically every college student's room is a forum of sorts at some time. And these "bull sessions" are real specimens of student thinking. In a forum one has a perfect chance to propound one's personal ideas on a subject, and to hear, in turn, the ideas of others propounded.

Last week, in the question-box column on this page, students were approached on the subject of a campus forum. The answers were definitely in accord with one thought: St. Joseph's, like every other active Catholic college, has a specified place for a campus forum. As a matter of fact, there is no better place than a public forum for airing one's opinion, hearing and testing another's opinion, and endeavoring to find the truth.

As it would be a student forum, with a student chairman and student participants, the students should be given opportunity to express their thoughts on the proposal. For this reason, we ask those of you who are interested to write us a letter. Tell us what you think of the forum; what would you like to have discussed in this forum; how you think it would best appeal. If your response is adequate, STUFF will initiate the forum within the very near future.

Inasmuch as February has been designated as National Catholic Press month, it might not be amiss to write a few lines here concerning that potent force. Few Catholics realize the true power of their press. Enemies of the Church appreciate the Catholic Press far more than some Catholics. Just why this should be is not easily explained.

It is quite true that the young Catholic journalist is realizing more and more the opportunities in the field of Catholic literature. Noting this, we might pre-suppose that more of the laity will soon find their way to reading Catholic papers. Once a person begins to read and study the editorial page of a Catholic newspaper he must come to know the truth there; he must be convinced for the good.

When the Sanguinist Club opens its press exhibit here, February 15, stop in and examine samples of the Catholic newspaper and magazine. You will find them not quite so boring on first inspection, rather interesting on second reading, and intensely so as you continue to read. If this question of interesting or non-interesting Catholic material were a matter for betting, the better would have one sure thing in a world where very few sure things exist.

Catholic Authors Come Under Student Discussion

By John O'Grady

Do the students of St. Joseph's College devote much of their time to reading Catholic literature? This is not the question of the week, but a negative answer to this query was disclosed in taking this week's poll of the students. Text books and technical journals compose the chief reading matter for the students. However, when the students do read the works of a Catholic author they seem to retain a lasting image of what they have read.

Frank Kehoe, senior from Newark, Ohio—"Kathleen Norris. Her works, which appear in many of the nation's leading magazines, prove that Catholic authors bear looking into. When reading the work of a Catholic writer one is certain to avoid the confusion and misleading philosophy which is prevalent in present-day literature.

Aloysius Ballard, junior pre-med student from Loretto, Ky.—"The writings of Owen F. Dudley always are very interesting to me. His works bring out the Catholic point of view on the trials and tribulations of life in a style that you cannot help liking."

Joseph Hanley, freshman from St. Joseph, Michigan—"After reading and listening to Monsignor Fulton J. Sheen, I choose him as my favorite Catholic author. His method of coming directly to the point in a very clear and concise manner are two of his outstanding characteristics. Unlike many authors he gives a complete view on both sides of the topic he is discussing."

Joseph Susi, sophomore from Newark, Ohio—"The works of G. K. Chesterton provide excellent food for thought. His methods of comparing the Catholic Church and the Anglican Church are a great aid."

Jack Callahan, freshman from Cedar Lake, Ind.—"Willa Cather is one good Catholic author that I know of. Her novels contain all that a good novel should, and she does them in a manner that brings out the true Catholic Philosophy touching important topics."

Robert Contant, sophomore from Ft. Wayne, Ind.—"The writings of Father Lord, S. J., have provided men with many moments of good constructive reading. The easy style, the personal touch, and the choice of topics make his works very interesting and worthwhile reading matter for any student."

Next time you pass through the library why not pause a minute and investigate the Catholic Literature Section?

In an imaginative trend of thought we might speculate as to which building on the campus would need the most protection, because of its necessity, in the event of an air raid. A hungry student would say, "the kitchen." A more thoughtful one would say, "the powerhouse." The latter would be correct.

It is almost too obvious to mention what an important part the powerhouse plays in the ordinary day at St. Joseph's. Heating, lighting, and pumping the water supply are the chief duties of this veritable heart of Collegeville.

The first powerhouse was very close to the heart of the students. Standing just off the southwest side of the Administration building, it was a small affair, but it served its purpose. Students who slept in the dorms on the top floor of this end of the building, for awhile, were very much afraid when a violent storm arose. The smoke stack of the powerhouse towered above them. It was getting weak and wobbly in its old age, and a hard wind might have spelled dangerous consequences. A heavy beam was erected from the roof of the Administration building to the smoke stack, and the students slept more peacefully on stormy nights. On very cold days the boiler room was made the terminus of many excursions of shivering students.

With the expansion of the college, in 1904, a new boiler house was built. Many wonder today what the old brick building is east of the garages. It is only the shell of this new powerhouse, which became old in its time. Inside, the walls of the furnace room are black. In the roof one can see the hole where the chimney was. The walls are perforated with numerous holes through which the pipes left the powerhouse. Underground they branched out to the various buildings, bringing comfort to those who oftentimes forget their existence and importance.

A Glance at St. Joe Life

This week's general scene shows us—Everyone still lamenting that he couldn't rid himself of those 'middle-of-the-nite' 8 o'clock classes . . . Bob Cashman and Don Clark enjoying themselves by rolling 'em on the floor in an afternoon class . . . Jack Bivenour back still promoting his Cleveland Indians to those who don't know better . . . And then there's Charley Hankish still being able to crawl on his cross . . .

Question of the Week

And what ever became of those firecrackers in Seifert Hall???

Drexel's mascot, Jerry being named after Jerry Bissler . . .

Bill Herber wielding a wicked camera when snapping pictures in the refectory . . .

While Bob Sacksteder snaps at anything and anybody in the same refectory . . .

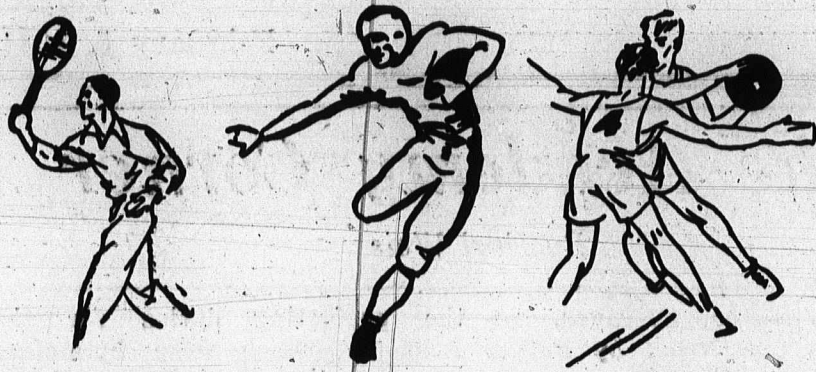

Remi Heynen returning for the new semester without that characteristic boil . . .

Then there's Dick Cody bemoaning the fact that his publicity has been lagging in the BLO boys' column . . .

While after the President's concert, Joe Reinman, Ray Schraff, George Lundy and Donald Vogt, cornered two bewildered young band members in Rensselaer's favorite hot spot . . . And also on the same nite in the same spot, Lunghi's, Mauri Gutsell did much better by letting four of the city's inhabitants surround him . . .

"Blue Streaks" To Play Here Tomorrow

Clevelanders Relying On Taking Fast Breaks

Puma Prints
By Bill Carlos

Mauri Gutsell, scrappy guard, who has been a gun on defense all season, displayed great scoring ability in the recent games against Mexico and Central Normal. He racked up 22 points as the Puma varsity and reserves took part in the slaughter of Mexico, 69-44, and he continued his scoring spree in the St. Joe-Central Normal game by pushing five field goals through the hoop before he was removed because of a side injury.

After the Central Normal victory Coach Dick Scharf remarked that Gutsell was the most improved player on the squad.

The St. Joseph Academy Cubs will go to Ft. Wayne, Feb. 21-23, where they will compete in the State Catholic basketball tournament. Coach Dick Scharf's boys still have four season games to worry about before tourney time.

Central Catholic of Ft. Wayne won the tournament last year and went on to take the National Catholic crown at Chicago in late March. Two new teams will make their appearance at Ft. Wayne this year, Sacred Heart, of Indianapolis, and St. Simon's, of Washington, Ind.

Augie Sunagel, St. Joe's "heavyweight hope," should be able to go the three rounds required for college bouts at top speed. Stout Augie does 24 laps (six miles) around the track each day.

Con Vanderkolk was in the Central Normal game just long enough to find the hoop for eight points, which gave him second highest scoring honors for St. Joseph's.

The Pumas made good on 24 of 97 field goal attempts and 10 out of 18 at the free throw line, against 14 out of 64 (field goals) and 8 out of 16 (free throws) for Central Normal.

Here is an account of the field goals attempted and made by all Puma cagers seeing action against CN.

John Carroll University's Blue Streaks will arrive on the campus this evening and attempt to get in a good night of sleep before tomorrow's scheduled meet with the Pumas.

To date the Clevelanders have a record of six wins and five losses. In four of the Carroll victories their margin has been three points or less, but they were able to throw them in when the chips were down. Coach Tim Conley relies on the use of a fast break whenever possible, and counts on most of the scoring to be accomplished under the basket.

Conley will probably use his regular starting lineup with Freedman and Carroll at the forward positions, Brysh at the center spot, and Talty and Sheeha as guards. Fred Fanelly, who has been suffering from an operation, may see action in the forward position, but his condition at the time will not assure him a starting berth.

Evansville vs St. Joe Monday!

It'll be a hot night in the old Jasper gym next Monday night when the Pumas meet the Purple Aces of Evansville. Both teams will be out for one purpose, to eliminate the other from the Indiana Conference Championship possibilities! The game will eliminate one of them from the title race. Then there will be another feature attraction of Mosser vs Doerner for high scoring leadership.

Doerner regained the lead Monday night by sinking 32 points against Earlham. That gave him 198 to Neal's 196. (Note: the X game is not included nor is DePauw's game with Evansville.) A third reason for the pressure: Jasper is the home town of our own Pfeffer, Gutsell and Hoffman; the factions will be well split up betwixt the two schools.

Xavier, Valpo Crushed Under Puma's Power

St. Joe won its third Conference game last Friday night by trouncing Valparaiso 58-36. Neal Mosser paced the Puma scoring with eleven field goals and two charity tosses, giving himself a greater edge in the State scoring lead and bringing his total for the season to 196.

Clauss and Larko hit the loop for buckets in the opening minutes to give Valpo an early lead. Boedeker offended Larko, who made the charity toss. Two baskets by Bernie Hoffman, one by Pfeffer, and one by Gutsell gave the Pumas the lead in less than three minutes. Mosser took over from here on, and with the exception of one interruption by Clauss, scored six successive times.

Connie Vanderkolk and Ed Schmidt were the features in the second period. Connie had his night, tallying three baskets and two free ones. Schmidt played his usual stellar ball game but had trouble keeping the Valpo lads off his back.

Rensselaer's armory will take on the appearance of a "little Madison Square Garden" tonight when St. Joe boxers climb into an inter-collegiate ring for the first time in the history of the school to engage in an eight-bout slugfest against Valparaiso.

The St. Joe fighters—all the way from bantamweight Cropley to heavyweight Sunagel—have been working out diligently for the past month under the able guidance of Head Coach Jack Miller and Assistant Coach S. J. Lapsys. Miller says that what his boys lack in experience they will make up in heart. Bob Cavey, scrappy lightweight and former champion of Wisconsin's Chain O' Lakes region is the only Puma who has seen much ring warfare. The Valpo pugs, themselves, are reported to be scrappy but green, so a night of close battle is likely in store.

Chuck Williamson, St. Joe's flashy middleweight, may not see action because he is slow in recovering from an attack of influenza. If Williamson is unable to fight, Tommy Scollard, hard-hitting Irish lad from the same Indianapolis neighborhood as Williamson, will probably take his place. Scollard, originally scheduled to fight a light-heavyweight bout, has trained so hard that he is down to a trim 159 lbs.

St. Joe gladiators to wear the varsity colors are: Cropley, 118; Cavey, 135; Bob Hess, 145; Duplain, 178; and Sunagel, 198. Four reserve boxers will put on the preliminaries: Carlos vs Spaulding (middleweights), and De Barnardi vs Shine (heavyweights).

Frosh Take Valpo 34-19 Monday Eve

Tom Ritter led the Frosh squad to their second inter-collegiate triumph Monday night when they downed the Valpo yearlings 34-19. Tom sank five field goals and two free tosses for twelve of the 34 points.

Valpo got off to an early lead, but the Frosh took over late in the first half and led at the close of the period, 15-11. Valpo hit the hoop only four times in the second period, while the Joe bench was running up the final 34-19 margin.

Utilities Discussed By W. McDonough

A very interesting talk was given by Mr. Walter McDonough, comptroller of the Northern Indiana Public Service Company, to Commerce Club members, faculty and guests at the regular meeting held last Tuesday evening.

After the speaker was introduced, he gave his reason for being there as rather selfish, namely, to improve public relations with his company. He showed that public utilities are under many strict government regulations, and said that public progress is not made by government ownership but by private enterprise.

Following the talk, questions were asked and guests from Rensselaer were introduced.

Father Baechle Writing About Photo-Micros

To many of us, photography is just another hobby, but to the Rev. John Baechle, C. P. S., biology instructor, it is a hobby not only interesting but even profitable.

Besides taking pictures for STUFF, Contact, and Phase, he frequently contributes products of his photographic ingenuity to numerous other publications.

In his album of published photos he has nearly fifty pictures which have appeared in newspapers, scientific journals, nature, and photography magazines, and even in textbooks. The majority of his work has naturally been in the field of biology.

He is a frequent contributor to the Monthly Journal of the National Association of Biology Teachers. One of his most interesting photographic accomplishments appeared in the Nov. 1940 issue of this publication—a "photo-micrograph" of a section of an embryonic mouse made without the use of camera or microscope. This was accomplished by placing a microscopic slide in an enlarger and projecting it onto a piece of lantern-slide sensitized glass. This slide was then used as a negative.

To appear in the same magazine soon, he has prepared an article entitled "Giant Chromosomes," accompanied with illustrations in which he demonstrates the splitting of cells with the aid of a common electric cord.

In the science division of the Graflex Photo Contest, held last fall, one of his photos won sixth prize, while another merited honorable mention, and both were exhibited at Radio City.

"The Microscopic World," a recently published text book, and the freshman biology textbook used here, both contain several photomicrographs made by Father Baechle.

Besides these, Father is working on more photos which he hopes to publish soon, most of them dealing with biology.

William Hatton, who formerly attended Rensselaer High School, entered the Academy this semester as a freshman.

The Rev. Walter Pax, C. P. S., Assistant Principal, has assumed the prefecting duties for the Academy which were heretofore held by the Rev. Rufus Esser, C. P. S., Principal. Father Esser, however, will continue to hold the office of Principal.

Wednesday evening, Jan. 29, saw the seniors taking advantage of their monthly town night; the rest took advantage of the regular evening study period.

In passing: Robert Anthony, biology student, expressed his belief a few days ago in the semi-annuals that a bee takes Hectar (How did he get in here?) from the flowers.

And William Hull, who certainly is entering into the spirit of the school, thought that the four stages of the moth are egg, larva, Puma, and butterfly.
